WEIRD

What if the kid says “I don’t know” to every single question the bot asks?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Does the bot have a way to keep going, or does it just freeze?

C-01

WEIRD

What if the kid types in a different language, or uses only emojis?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

What does your bot do when it doesn’t recognise the input format?

EDGE

What if all the choices are equally good — the bot genuinely cannot tell the difference?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Does your bot just pick randomly? Does it admit it doesn’t know?

C-08

What if all the options are equally bad — there is no good answer?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Can your bot say “I don’t have a good answer for this”?

What if the kid asks the bot to help with something that could hurt someone?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Where are your bot’s hard limits? Are they written into the rules?

C-13

TRUST

What if the kid thinks the bot is being bossy or pushy?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Does your bot ever suggest, rather than decide? Can it back off?

C-15

What if the kid's friend used the same bot and got completely different advice for the same problem?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Are your rules written so two different people get consistent logic?

What if the kid asks "why did you choose that?" and the bot cannot explain its reasoning?

ASK (AFTER THE SLAP)

Can your bot trace its own logic? Or does it just output answers?

C-17
